Welcome to Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders

Introduction

360° Feedback with 3 Personalized Strategies

When you think about people who exemplify leadership—historical figures, contemporary standouts, or people in your organization—do the words generic or cookie cutter come to mind? Probably not. Most likely, you can describe unique aspects of their leadership style that help them succeed. In fact, two equally successful leaders may take two very different approaches to leadership.

And so, why in the world should leadership training involve following one set of narrowly defined principles? This program aims to help you reflect on your use of a broad range of highly effective approaches to leadership. You'll receive constructive 360° feedback on your leadership approaches, and you'll discover three personalized strategies to help you become a more effective leader.

Cornerstone Principles of Everything DiSC 363 for Leaders

- ▶ Your leadership is influenced by a variety of factors such as character, life experiences, cognitive abilities, and maturity
- ▶ Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders focuses on the interpersonal aspects of leadership
- ▶ All eight approaches contribute to leadership success
- ▶ While you don't need to excel in every area, you need at least some level of competency in each to be a great leader
- ▶ Leaders are most likely to have strengths in areas that reflect their own styles
- ▶ Understanding yourself better is the first step to becoming more effective when leading others

Everything DiSC 363 for Leaders describes a rich spectrum of behaviors called Eight Approaches to Effective Leadership. This model, pictured at left, is based on DiSC[®], a simple tool that's been helping people to connect better for over thirty years.

Individual leaders, followers, and organizations may prefer certain approaches over others. Effective leaders tend to use a range of approaches.

A Three-Step Process

Using multi-rater feedback and your self-assessment, Taylor, this program will help you identify which aspects of the eight approaches are your strengths—those that you use most frequently—and which areas you might benefit from developing further.

In this report, you'll have the opportunity to elevate your leadership effectiveness by:

- Understanding how others see you as a leader
- Exploring your tendencies on the eight approaches
- Learning three strategies to become a more effective leader

Your Leadership Outlook

Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders

Introduction

What follows is an overview of your tendencies as a leader based on your own responses to the assessment. Personalize your feedback by putting a ✓ next to things that are like you, an X next to items that are not like you, and a ? next to things you aren't sure about.

Taylor, you're probably a dynamic leader who pushes yourself and the group to reach ambitious goals. You expect others to maintain a fast pace, and you have little patience for people or processes that hinder the group's progress. Sitting still may be agonizing for you. Since you have a strong need for variety, you're often eager to seize new opportunities, especially when bold action is required.

Most likely, you want to have the freedom to set your own course as a leader. While you're probably quite collaborative at times, you want to reserve the right to decide how to spend your time and energy. You tend to be frustrated by situations that require you to jump through a lot of hoops, and you dislike policies and procedures that stand in the way of creative ideas that stretch current boundaries.

Because you have grand ambitions for yourself as a leader, you're probably attracted to high-profile assignments that will allow you to showcase your talents. You're often happy to accept responsibility, and you probably enjoy being in charge. Since you have the ability to create forward momentum in a group, you avoid getting bogged down in the details and may prefer to delegate more methodical responsibilities to others.

You tend to be a bold and adventurous leader. Because you like being spontaneous, you probably struggle with situations that require you to exercise highly disciplined analysis. You're open to taking risks, and you're willing to make decisions based on your gut instinct when necessary. As a result, you may find your goals and decisions challenged by more systematic colleagues who stress objectivity.

Like other leaders with your style, you probably leverage personal connections to help get the results you want. Your charisma and enthusiasm allow you to effortlessly rally others to support your goals. Most likely, you're quite candid and self-confident, and other people may naturally look to you for leadership. You may have discovered that tapping into other people's ideas brings a better chance of success, so you often create brainstorming opportunities.

When conflict arises, you probably approach it proactively in an attempt to get back on task. However, when put under a great deal of pressure, you may become combative or belligerent, lashing out at others with little concern for the consequences. While unleashing your anger may seem cathartic, this may cause others to find you intimidating or unapproachable.

Because you want to be heard, you tend to become frustrated when you feel that others aren't on board with your plans for the group. You may even run the risk of closing yourself off to input and becoming too insistent if you feel your ideas aren't taken seriously. You expect some public acknowledgement of your accomplishments, but you don't require a lot of gushing praise. And, because you value recognition yourself, your leadership approach often involves generously complimenting others.

Taylor, all of these behaviors reflect your top leadership approaches. Your most valuable contributions as a leader may include your pioneering attitude, your commanding presence, and your ability to energize people.

In the report that follows, you'll discover other people's perceptions of your leadership approaches. Some of these will agree with your own view of yourself, while others may disagree or even contradict. Through this process, you will be able to build self-awareness and a better understanding of what you can do to be a more effective leader.

Eight Approaches and their Practices

Introduction

Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders

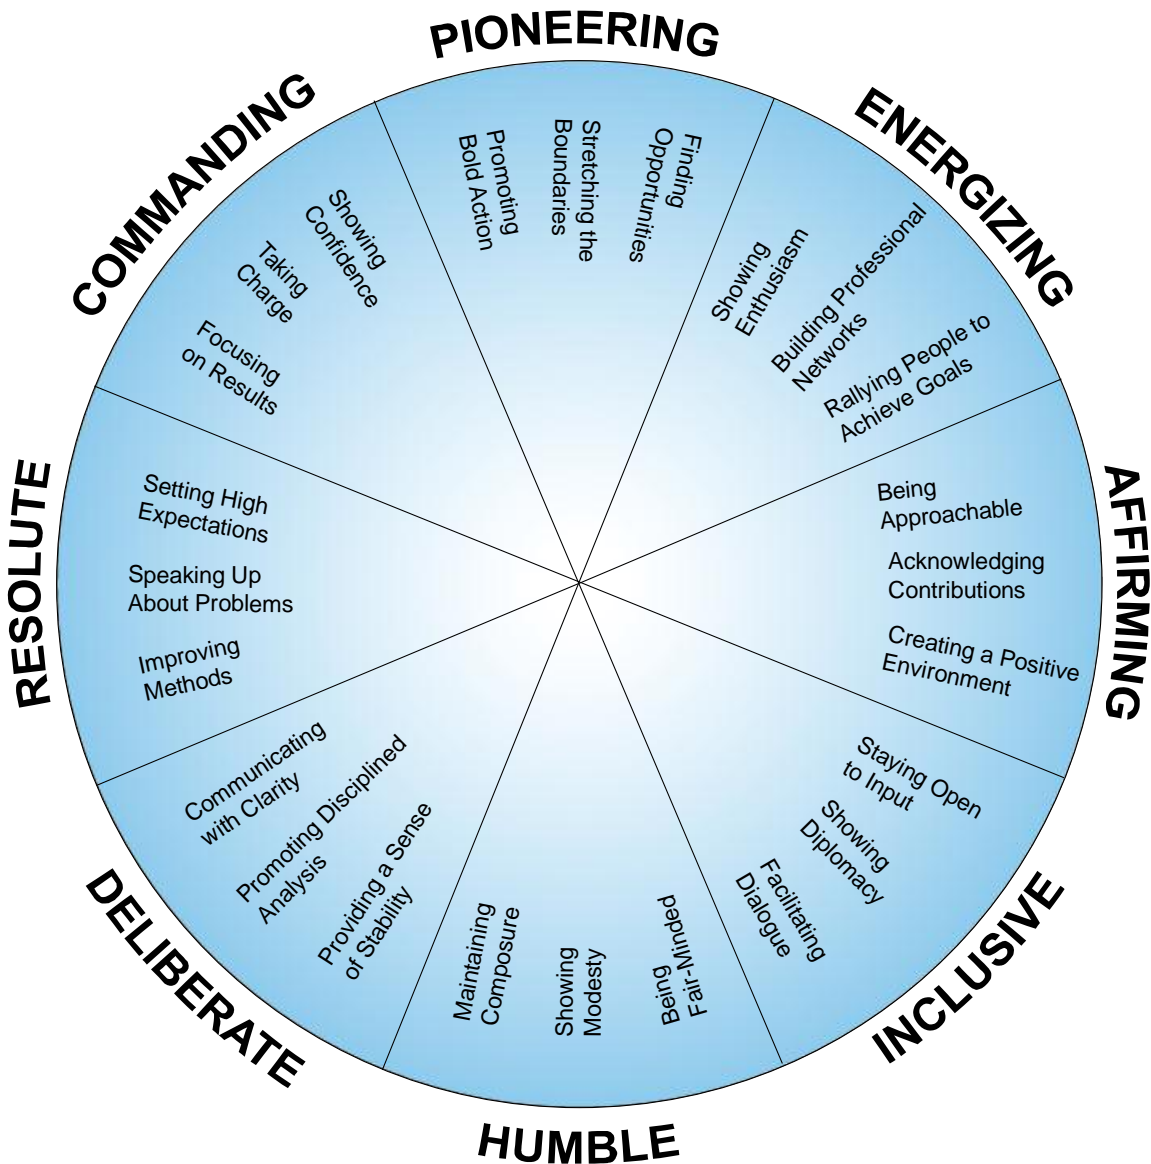

Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders is supported by contemporary leadership research into the interpersonal characteristics of leaders. The result is Eight Approaches to Effective Leadership, a useful, inclusive framework for discussing the characteristics of effective leaders.

In your Big-Picture Feedback on the following pages, you'll discover how your colleagues see you performing on each of these eight approaches. You'll also see how your own self-ratings compare to those of your raters.

Each of the approaches is comprised of three Practices, or underlying components. The Detailed Feedback section of this report will give you insight into how much your raters see you using these practices.

Finally, in Three Strategies for Development, you'll discover your greatest strengths as a leader, and then you'll get in-depth information and concrete strategies for improving on the three practices that your raters want you to use more often.

The Eight Approaches and their Practices

How Your Raters See You

Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders

Big-Picture Feedback

The graph below provides a snapshot of how your raters describe your performance on the eight approaches. The shape of your graph indicates their perceptions of how often you use each of the eight approaches. The closer that each point on the graph is to an approach, the more often your raters see you using that approach.

Definitions of the Eight Approaches

Pioneering:

A pioneering leader encourages the group to think creatively about their options and take chances on new opportunities.

Energizing:

An energizing leader builds enthusiasm for the group's goals and develops a wide network of professional connections.

Affirming:

An affirming leader is approachable and helps people feel good about their environment and their contributions.

Inclusive:

An inclusive leader gets a variety of people involved in the decision-making process and shows concern for their opinions and feelings.

Humble:

A humble leader maintains a modest, composed demeanor and can be relied upon to make decisions fairly.

Deliberate:

A deliberate leader provides a sense of stability for the group by communicating clearly and ensuring that decisions are made carefully.

Resolute:

A resolute leader creates high standards for the group and insists on using methods that maximize efficiency.

Commanding:

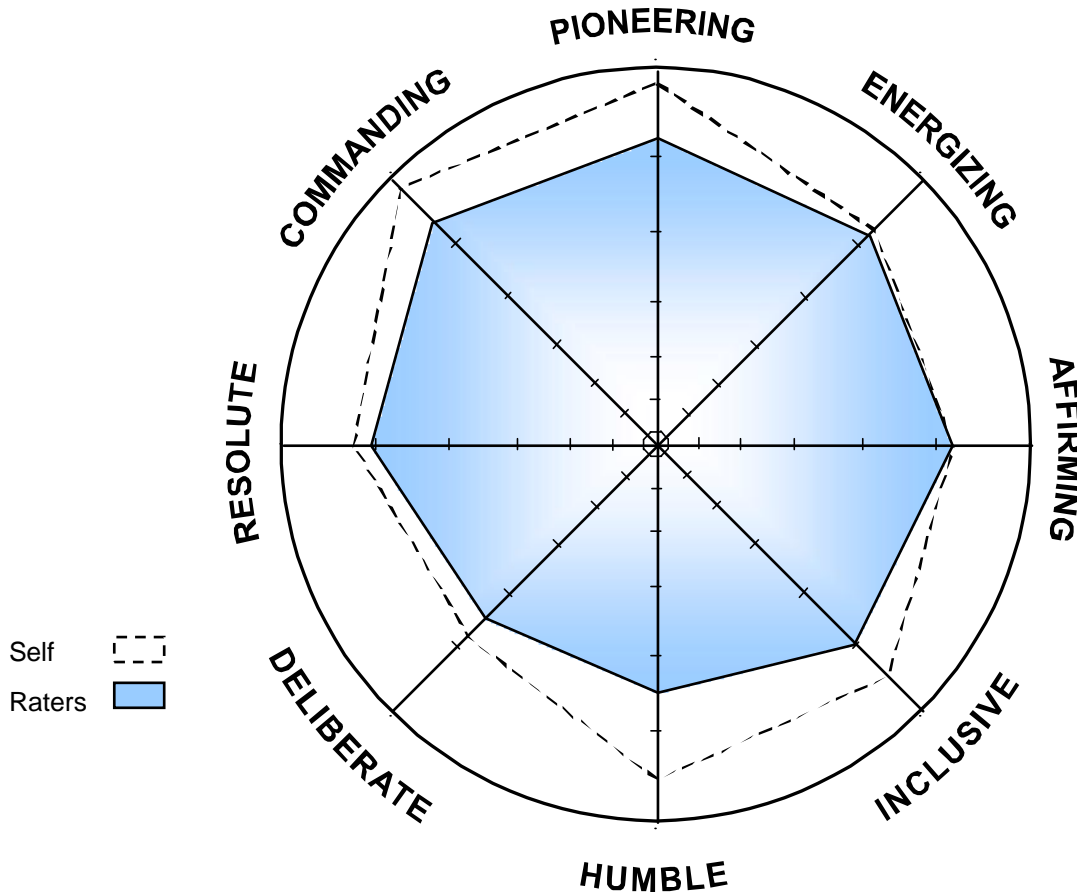

A commanding leader takes charge of situations with confidence and urges others to get results.

Self vs. All Raters

Everything DiSC 363® for Leaders

Big-Picture Feedback

The map below compares your self-ratings, as shown by the dotted line, with the ratings given to you by your raters.

How Your Ratings Compare

Overall, Taylor, there seems to be relatively little difference between how you rate your leadership performance and how others view your performance. In fact, only 25% of leaders show a difference as small as yours. In general, you seem to have a relatively high level of self-awareness when it comes to your leadership skills.

- You tended to see yourself as more Humble than others do. For example, you may overestimate how fair-minded you are when making decisions.
- You tended to see yourself as more Pioneering than others do. For example, you may overestimate how often you find new opportunities for the group.
- You tended to see yourself as more Inclusive than others do. For example, you may overestimate how often you facilitate open dialogue in the group.

The rest of this report will give you a chance to explore each of these areas in more detail.

Your Greatest Strengths as a Leader

Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders

Taylor, the next step is taking all the feedback you've been given and using it to become a more effective leader. First, let's take a look at your strengths. Below, you'll find the top three areas that your raters identified as your greatest assets. By staying focused on these strengths, you can put them to best use to increase your leadership effectiveness.

Strength #1: Being Approachable

Because people see you as being approachable, they are likely to feel comfortable coming to you for help or advice. You come across as warm and friendly, and you rarely appear too busy to talk. Because of this, you're more likely to be tuned into the needs and morale of your group, which can be a major asset to you as a leader. Your strengths likely include:

- You welcome casual conversations with people at all levels of the organization.
- You give others your undivided attention when they come to you for advice.
- Because you're not intimidating, people are more likely to let you know when problems arise, so you can address them in a timely manner.

Strength #2: Showing Confidence

Leaders need to speak and act with conviction in order to maintain the confidence and trust of the people around them. Since you show confidence and you aren't afraid to speak assertively, people probably feel assured of your abilities and see you as a leader who can steer them toward greater success. Your strengths likely include:

- You're confident in your opinions.
- You model self-assurance that can help the group feel more confident about its work.
- You're likely a strong champion for ideas and goals you think are important.

Strength #3: Taking Charge

It's hard to imagine an effective leader who doesn't provide direction for the group. Because you're willing to take charge, people can count on you to step up and make decisions, especially when no one else will. Your ability to see that decisions get made can instill a sense of confidence in the group, since they know that you'll provide the guidance they need. Your strengths likely include:

- You take charge of situations when leadership seems to be lacking.
- You're able to effectively step in and take control to maintain momentum.
- You take the lead in group situations so that people know whom to follow.

Your Three Strategies for Development

Now that you have a better idea of your strengths as a leader, let's take a closer look at the areas where your raters indicated you have the greatest opportunities for improvement. We'll explore the three practices that were chosen for you based on recommendations by your raters: Showing Diplomacy, Communicating with Clarity, and Staying Open to Input. Each of the next three pages will include the following three steps:

1. Discover why this strategy was chosen for you based on your raters' feedback.
2. Personalize the information by choosing from bullet points that help explain how your raters responded.
3. Apply what you've learned by selecting tips to increase your effectiveness.

Showing Diplomacy

Three Strategies for Development

Taylor, your raters were asked, "Do you think he needs to show more diplomacy?"

This is the number of raters who selected each of the three response options:

Yes, a lot more	1
Yes, a little more	13
No	9
Total Raters	23

Based on these responses, Showing Diplomacy was selected as one of your Three Strategies for Development. The information below is personalized based on your rater comments and self-assessment.

► PERSONALIZE ✓ X ?

Select the bulleted statements that best describe you.

- Your straightforward style may come across as blunt or aggressive.
- When there is a disagreement, you may spend more time making your point than listening to other people.
- You sometimes fail to take people's feelings into account.

► APPLY ✓ X ?

Choose tips to improve your effectiveness.

- Practice a more tactful method of giving feedback, even if it feels contrived to you. When you have input to share with a colleague, challenge yourself to start and end with a positive comment. This well-tested sandwich approach really does work, but it may take some practice since you generally prefer to speak your mind. Don't be discouraged if it feels unnatural at first.
- Trust plays a role in whether others see you as diplomatic. When interacting with others, be mindful of the strength of your relationships. Your personal history with individuals or groups affects how they interpret your words. When trust is present, it can serve as a buffer, and your intent is usually clear. However, without trust, diplomacy is absolutely essential. When you find yourself becoming reactive or aggressive, slow down and seek first to understand where others are coming from. If you show more diplomacy, people are more likely to collaborate with you willingly in the future.
- Take some time to consider how people demonstrate respect. Think of a relationship where you feel respected. What feels good about it? How does the other person ask you to do things? For example, do they make requests, or make demands? How do they question your opinions respectfully? How do they show respect for your time? Now, reflect on how you can take positive aspects of this relationship and apply them to your own leadership behavior.

Communicating with Clarity

Everything DiSC 363[®] for Leaders

Three Strategies for Development

► DISCOVER

Why this practice of the Deliberate Approach was chosen for you.

Taylor, your raters were asked, "Do you think he needs to communicate with more clarity?"

This is the number of raters who selected each of the three response options:

Yes, a lot more	2
Yes, a little more	10
No	11
Total Raters	23

Based on these responses, Communicating with Clarity was selected as one of your Three Strategies for Development. The information below is personalized based on your rater comments and self-assessment.

► PERSONALIZE ✓ X ?

Select the bulleted statements that best describe you.

- You may find that it's sometimes difficult for others to understand you.
- Because you like to keep things moving, you don't always put your thoughts together before communicating.
- You may not always take the time to clearly state the topic before you explain your points.

► APPLY ✓ X ?

Choose tips to improve your effectiveness.

- When people are kept on a need-to-know basis, they're likely to feel frustrated and confused if plans change or a lot of new information comes their way. Take the time to understand how new information will impact others, and anticipate the questions or concerns they may have. Sending e-mails, updating shared files, and holding informal check-in meetings can all be effective ways to make certain that people are aware of new developments.
- When you lay out plans and goals, don't assume that others are privy to the necessary background information. Make sure to clearly explain decisions and events that have influenced your current message. Consider the least informed person in the room and imagine hearing the communication for the first time. Because people may be reluctant to admit when they aren't following your message, ask them to play back the main points to ensure understanding.
- While you're probably emphatic and persuasive when speaking, you may move too quickly past the main message. Because people often tune in and out of a long conversation or speech, clearly establish your main point and keep referring back to it. Show how the pieces fit together, and clearly explain how the details connect to the overall plan. Pause frequently to ask for questions. At the end, check in with people to make sure they understand how their roles fit into the big picture.

Staying Open to Input

Three Strategies for Development

► DISCOVER

Why this practice of the Inclusive Approach was chosen for you.

Taylor, your raters were asked, "Do you think he needs to be more open to input from others?"

This is the number of raters who selected each of the three response options:

Yes, a lot more	0
Yes, a little more	11
No	12
Total Raters	23

Based on these responses, Staying Open to Input was selected as one of your Three Strategies for Development. The information below is personalized based on your rater comments and self-assessment.

► PERSONALIZE ✓ X ?

Select the bulleted statements that best describe you.

- At times, you like to be quick to make decisions and move on.
- When you've made up your mind, you may not give serious consideration to other people's ideas.
- You can be so strong-willed that you refuse to reconsider your opinions.
- Because you have confidence in your own ideas, it may be hard for you to ask for others' opinions.

► APPLY ✓ X ?

Choose tips to improve your effectiveness.

- Because you tend to be confident, you may feel comfortable pushing through decisions without seeking input. However, the most effective leaders tend to consider others' feedback before moving ahead. Before you finalize a decision, run it by the group, and pause to evaluate the response. Take note of body language and expressions, and if people don't seem 100% on board, ask them to share their feelings. Then, you make the call: Would it be better to decide and move on, or to reopen the process?
- At times, you may be so certain about your own ideas that you reject any feedback that points out potential issues. When you find yourself becoming defensive about your ideas, take a step back. Use this as an opportunity to practice appreciating opposing viewpoints. Avoid being dismissive, and validate the other person by asking questions until you understand exactly what's driving his or her opposition. Then, go ahead and make the best possible decision.
- It's sometimes difficult to stay open to feedback that challenges your viewpoint or assumptions. Instead of reacting hastily and shutting others down, ask them for time to think about their suggestions. Then take a few minutes to reflect on your own motives for not considering their input. If possible, talk it through with an unbiased colleague who can give you an independent point of view and doesn't feel the need to validate your objections.
